

Majors and Minors of Degree Recipients, 2010-11 to 2014-15

FACT SHEET

UNDERGRADUATE MAJORS

In 2010-11, the count of Majors of undergraduate degree recipients was 8,316. During that time, the top Majors were Economics, Political Science, Integrative Biology, Business Administration, and Psychology. In 2014-15, degree recipients had 8,553 Majors, a 2.8% increase from five years before. In 2014-15, the most popular Majors were Economics (+24% change from 2010-11), Integrative Biology (+11%), Psychology (+12%), Political Science (-13%), and Electrical Engineering & Computer Sciences (+41%). The growth in Electrical Engineering & Computer Sciences launched it into the top five in 2014-15, overtaking Business Administration, which did not appreciably change over those five years in terms of the number of degrees awarded.

Majors of undergraduate degree recipients that saw the highest absolute growth from 2010-11 to 2014-15 included Computer Sciences in Letters & Science (+213 students), Statistics (+142), Economics (+122), Electrical Engineering & Computer Sciences (+107), and Applied Mathematics (+78). Majors of degree recipients with the largest percent change from 2010-11 to 2014-15, and at least 10 students in 2014-15, were Geology (+183% change), Geophysics (+183%), Computer Sciences in L&S (+182%), Statistics (+153%), Bioengineering & Materials Science Joint Major (+150%), and Chemical Engineering & Materials Science Joint Major (+150%). Fewer students in 2014-15 compared to 2010-11 majored in L&S Environmental Economy & Policy (-106 students), Molecular & Cell Biology – Cell & Developmental Biology (-74), History (-72), Civil Engineering (-69), and Conservation & Resource Studies (-59). Data on all Majors is available in Appendix A.

UNDERGRADUATE MINORS

Undergraduate degree recipients in 2014-15 earned a total of 1,123 Minors. This is an increase of 11% from 2010-11 (n = 1,011). The list of Minors also grew over this time period, from 76 to 85 Minors. In 2010-11, the most popular Minors of degree recipients were Education, Global Poverty and Practice, Public Policy, Music, and City and Regional Planning. Most popular Minors of degree recipients in 2014-15 were Education (-20% change from 2010-11), Public Policy (+55%), Music (-11%), Global Poverty and Practice (-51%), and Sustainable Design (+26%).

Minors of undergraduate degree recipients that had the highest absolute growth from 2010-11 to 2014-15 were Public Policy (+44 students), Geospatial Information Science and Technology (+21), History (+20), Cal Teach – Science and Mathematics Education (+19), and Disability Studies (+18). Minors completed by fewer graduates in 2014-15 as compared to five years before were Global Poverty and Practice (-48 students), Education (-33), and City and Regional Planning (-22). Net decrease for all other Minors was fewer than 10 students. Data on all Minors is available in Appendix B.

DATA

Data on Majors was extracted from Cal Answers (calanswers.berkeley.edu) on 22 July 2016. Data on Minors was taken from transcript records. The counts are for Majors (or Minors) of degree recipients, not the number of graduates or the number of degrees. Students who graduated with more than one Major (or Minor) were counted in each Major (or Minor). Five-year totals are the sum of Majors (or Minors) for 2010-11, 2011-12, 2012-13, 2013-14, and 2014-15. Net change was calculated by subtracting the count in 2010-11 from the count in 2014-15. Percent change was calculated by dividing net change by the count in 2010-11. Data for all Majors and Minors are found in the appendices.
